Organized Enterprise.

The great look of Bangor and of Maine generally is, organized enterprise. We believe the elements are amongst us for as great exploits in industrial enterprise as are in any community, and properly directed there is no reason they should not accomplish as much as elsewhere. The history of Bangor is remarkable for the individual enterprise of its people. Single-handed, its business men have accomplished what may be termed daring feats of enterprising speculation. They have built up estates from the forests; they have carved fortunes out of the ocean, in the land commerce they have compelled successfully and well. No New England city can perhaps show a better record for industrious, intelligent growth than Bangor. Still, we believe the lack of organization has prevented the growth that might have been ours.

The cities of the West may well stand as examples to Bangor and to other cities in this State. A new country most emphatically calls for concert of action with its citizens—it is a necessity, with them, having growth and wealth in view. Starting upon a new race with the world, they feel the effect of competition, which cannot be met successfully by mere individual effort. They see numerous communities offering inducements to immigration and capital, and they must act as a community to hold the balance. Natural advantages have much to do with the ultimate success of their enterprise, to be sure; but it frequently happens that with energetic effort one community will outstrip another more favored by nature. To a certain extent, the facilities of a location may depend upon and be subordinate to the exertions of those who can control its destiny, as they do its capital and its intelligence. Hence, where the spirit of enterprise is lacking, we see that some of the most eligible localities languish, while barren wastes, by comparison, spring up into the most fruitful places. So the West, where active men gain and hold the supremacy from the first, grows in many cases far beyond its natural deserts. Its pioneers form themselves into associations to promote its development. They have immigration societies, they have land societies, their small towns invite all kinds of industry by offering liberal inducements. They tax themselves heavily as communities, with the certainty that such liberality is never thrown away. In great enterprises, promising future advantage to the towns of which they form a part, people lay aside jealousy and, associate for the accomplishment of what individually is impossible. It would astonish our Eastern men to observe in many cases the improvements, the growth, the permanent prosperity over, which are actually forced upon a location by the organization of its enterprise giving it character and strength.

Maine has been peculiarly deficient in organizations. The complaint that our young men have for years sought other States in which to build themselves up is not reasonable. Maine has not offered them the inducements to stay at home, which might easily have attracted them. Maine has waited for others to lead in works of great public benefit. Her citizens have displayed great energy and daring individually, but wherever a work demanded a general co-operation, there they have halted. Our young men have said to those who control our destiny, "instead of investing your capital abroad to build up corporations already in operation, combine at home, put your capital, your energy, your influence, together, and plan manufactories upon an hundred privileges which have been awaiting you these many years, and then we will stay at home and help you." The truth is in a nut-shell—without improvements Maine is not the place for swelling population; with the improvements to properly develop our great natural facilities, we may not only hold our own population, but must call in large accessions from abroad.

The State of Maine does not lack enterprise, but that enterprise must and will organize for better work. Our people have seen that in co-operation great enterprises may be accomplished with our excellent advantages. And now let them organize for business purposes as thoroughly and as effectually as they do in politics, and success is inevitable. We can gain immigrants by that means, as they do in the Western States. We may attract capital by showing that we are ready to combine to build up manufacturing communities. We may draw to the world that we will protect and encourage and sustain enterprise in which they may be interested. Boards of Trade, Mercantile Associations, and all organizations calculated to associate our citizens in closer business and social relations, must meet with warm encouragement. In a Western city, when any local interest is at stake, the whole community acts promptly and forcibly through its societies, while in a Maine city, local interests may be sacrificed from the lack of this means of being heard. Some means should be sought to bring our citizens together frequently for discussion of the various topics of material interest. Commencing thus, we shall naturally obtain more co operation for building up manufactories and other enterprises. These subjects only need to be generally discussed to be practically improved upon. Bangor can be a great city by simply improving the facilities that lay at its feet, and we have every reason to believe that its destiny is foreseen by our citizens, and that they are ready to put their shoulders to the wheel to hasten the auspicious day. What is true of Bangor is true of the whole State; the awakening to our needs and the determination to turn over a new leaf for greater improvement, is general. The great requisite to the accomplishment of our better destiny is that enterprise be more effectually organized for action.

At their old game of bluff and bluster, are the Democratic papers. The Maine Standard says, if last year's campaign were to be fought over again, how different would be the result! If we remember correctly, the same story followed the inauguration four and eight years ago. The Republicans, inaching in their honest view, is always wrong side up very soon after election; but somehow when it rains Presidential votes our partisan is apt to stand invariably where it pours. Oh, no, Mr. Standard; the trouble is not with the object observed; but they have looked so long and vainly askant for Republican disaster, that Democratic eyes have an ugly squint, and all objects are inverted.

The New York Post, referring to the Democratic talk about appointing relatives to office, cites five prominent Democratic officials in that city who have divided among their family connections twenty-three good offices. It takes the Democracy to do those things up in style.

Mr. Johnson, not the Revenge, is about being immortalized. The State Department has just prepared a list of counterfeiters convicted and pardoned during Mr. Johnson's term. The total number of cases was one hundred and forty-two. The pardons began with the remission of two sentenced on the day of Mr. Lincoln's funeral, and the last was on the last day of Mr. Johnson's term. A similar list of the pardons granted persons convicted of violating the internal revenue laws, shows ninety one cases. That is large enough for one Presidential term, and is no wonder the hero can retire with the boast of honesty upon his chaste lips; but it is a dubious day for honesty when its reflections are only in the rogue's gallery.

Later from Cuba. Mr. Torlentino, formerly Vice Consul at Havana, who has just returned to Washington from Cuba, had an interview with the President yesterday, on the condition of affairs in Cuba. He tells quite a different story from that to persist-ently related in the dispatches of Admiral Hoff to the Navy Department. This probably arises from the fact that Mr. Torlentino has been in the interior of the Island and has had an opportunity of observing the doings of the insurgents himself. He informed the President that if the leaders of the Cubans pursued the present course they would certainly succeed, and this was admitted by the Spanish authorities. The harassing policy adopted by the Cubans of avoiding an open fight and keeping the Spanish army following them, was operating fearfully upon the latter. Large numbers die in the march of which no public mention is ever made, while hundreds are broken out on by disease. Mr. Torlentino informed the President that the Spanish reports of the loss of Cubans in the various engagements or skirmishes which have taken place are exaggerations and almost devoid of truth. Upon being questioned as to the prospects of success on securing their independence, Mr. Torlentino replied that despite the efforts of the Spanish army in Cuba. The present army there is to be so far reduced as to be ineffective for open pursuing the Cuban bands from place to place. The Cubans were still expecting aid from the United States, the leaders of the revolution regarding our Government as a natural ally. Mr. Torlentino says the President listened very attentively to him respective the foregoing questions.

The Soldiers as Hand Organists. The following note was published in the Providence Journal and other papers:

PROVIDENCE, April 17, 1869.

To the Editor of the Journal:

The following paragraph appeared in your issue of the 16th inst.:

"The Lawrence American says it has reason to believe that at least one manifestation of the late handsome thing by starving, limping looking cripple, putting a soldier's coat upon him and paying him a small sum per day, and the rest, to grind an organ for him. Some of the organ-grinders in Boston and Worcester, make forty dollars per day at the business."

I wish to say it is false in every particular. A friend and I have been recently playing in said city of Lawrence. I ask the insertion of this note to correct any impression there may be that any other organ-player have practiced the same upon the public to any such base end.

I am yours, respectfully,

CHARLES FISHER,
Late of Co. E, Eighth Me. Vols.

In regard to the above the Soldiers' Friend says that if those whose patriotism and moral sense are shocked by the sight of soldiers turning hand organs for a living, will show their sympathy for the soldier in the best practical mode, that is to secure them suitable employment at self-supporting wages. We know of cases in which employment has been offered, and the wages commuted on the basis of the man's pension. The pension being so much, the pay is put so that the employer is getting the work done while the Government pays its proportion. We want every disabled soldier to have such compensation, at least, that he can deposit his pension—the blood-price of his limbs—in the bank for the purchase of a homestead for himself, his family, or to provide for the want of the future.

The Boar Man Wins. Mr. Fisher, the Commissioner of Patents, has virtually adopted the principles of Mr. Jenckes' civil service bill. He has corps of examiners to fill all vacancies still existing, of which there are four; he says: "Come on such a day and be examined. All have the same chance: you can be first assistant if you think enough." A great many have tried, but only a few have been found competent, though the examination has not been severe, for the old series of questions prepared in the department some time since, but which, having been made a political opportunity, fell into disuse. Applicants, having been made acquainted with the character of the questions, are now prepared for the examination. The colored clerks were appointed in the patent office the other day.

The Coal Strike. The Pottsville Miners' Journal has an article on the coal strike, which usually concedes that the strike is more of a lock-out than a turnout. On Friday last a meeting of the Protective Union of General Council was held in Hazleton, Pa., at which the resolutions adopted was the following: That the minimum price of coal be fixed as follows: $5 at New York city, and $4 at Port Carbon, Schuylkill county, Pa., and the basis to be fixed in accordance therewith."

A Philadelphia dispatch to the Wilkesbarre (Pa.) Union says the miners are all out at Lackawanna, Hazleton, Kingston and Plymouth, except at the New England Mines. The latter will stay in until driven out by the strikers.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post says it has been ascertained from very trustworthy sources that there is no desire on the part of the President to re-open negotiations with England. In his judgment the question ought to be set at rest as speedily as possible. But he maintains that it is for the British Government to say whether they desire it to remain in its present shape.

Pardon of Hester Vaughan. This woman, who was tried and convicted of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged, for the murder of her child, has at last been pardoned by Governor Geary of Pennsylvania. There were some circumstances connected with this case which excited unusual sympathy at the time of conviction. There were serious doubts whether the poor creature knew what she was about at the time she committed the crime, and very strong efforts have been made to save her, especially by women of New York, who held a public meeting, and sent a delegation to the Governor to urge on him her pardon.

Decoration Day. The President, Gen. Sherman, the heads of departments, members of the diplomatic corps, and officers of army and navy, will participate in the decoration of soldiers' graves at Arlington on the 29th inst. The departments will be closed and the day will be observed as a holiday. The music will be by a chorus of one hundred voices, supported by the marine band.

Through Line to New York. Some days since it was indicated that at no distant day a direct railroad line would connect Portland with New York, giving us a chance for cheaper freight and better markets, and ultimately bringing Maine the straight line of travel. The prominence to which we quote.

"The city of New [illegible] voted $200,000 in aid of the Nesmith & Portland Railroad. This road, 269 miles long, between New York and Rochester, some 23 miles of the Portland [illegible] early construction [illegible] through the state. Portland people, [illegible] Portland, will [illegible] compared with [illegible] to say nothing [illegible] which is inevitably [illegible] named city. [illegible] York, whether [illegible] for the all-rail [illegible] by the [illegible] Worcester & Nashua [illegible] which read as well as the Norwich & Worcester and the Providence & Worcester, is interested in the construction of the Nesmith and Worcester road, and will take with the aid of the population along the route, effective steps to secure its early completion.

In local significance, the enterprise of completing this link of 60 miles or so of railway, is of the most consequence to Portland, next to this city. It is this country all roads lead to New York. It is for other localities to promote the means of intercourse which will turn trade to them respectively. Portland stands in the relation to the enterprise alluded to. All it brings that duty, with its added capacity for a great commerce, out of the background and false position of a tributary of Boston, and into that more direct communication with the city and the Great West which is rapidly increasing business and growing commercial importance demands.

It is interesting, however, to New Yorkers and to the western people, who are great travelers, to know that a route straight across New England is presently to be opened to them, as it moreover, will be a connecting link in of direct line from New York and the West with the great Maine and Colonial enterprises, the European & North American Railroad, which as will be seen from an article copied on a preceding page from a London journal, is near its completion. Over that is to pass the great line of travel across the Atlantic, inasmuch as it shortens the sea voyage by three or four days.

Decoration of Soldiers' Graves. A correspondent of the Boston Traveller, who is visiting the Southern battlefields, writes thus of the coming decoration of soldiers' graves:

Oh, that we could be there to participate. We should feel a much greater interest than ever before. Dearly forget the dead that died and were buried away from home. Dearly did the wreath to them which you hang upon their monument. We have encountered many strangers in the cemetery of Corpus Christi, the burial-place of the Massachusetts and New Hampshire dead, decorated with flowers on that day. We would like to have made it known at that no patriot's grave might go without a tribute. But, dear, many will lie in their cold graves unnoticed—but we hope they or their deeds are not forgotten. For ourself, we will decorate the graves of our comrades on that day, and strew flowers over as many as we possibly can; and we ask of the patriot assemblages who meet on that day that they remember in some befitting manner the "dead who died in distant lands." One hundred and fifty thousand Northern dead lie in the South, and only two-thirds of them "Unknown." You must not forget them.

"He mourns the dead who lives as they desire."

G. A. R. Appointments. The Boston Journal's Washington dispatch says: "Gen. Logan has appointed Col. W. T. Collins, Adjutant General, and Col. R. J. Hinton, Assistant Adjutant General of the Grand Army of the Republic. Col. Hinton will have the editorial charge of the volume which is to contain the reports of the proceedings under the auspices of the different posts on the 29th, which he cannot fail to perform creditably and promptly."

A convention of old residents of the Pacific States was held in New York Wednesday, to hold into the opening of the Pacific Railways. Senator Nye presided. Resolutions were adopted on the completion of the Pacific Railroad, and speeches were made. Gov. Price, who made possession of California in the name of the United States, and Colonel Edward Higgins, who stood side by side with him and raised the first American flag on that soil, made brief retrospective speeches. Mr. J. W. Gregory, who went out as a newsboy and brought the first gold by express from California to New York, made a very amusing speech and gave to the California Historical Society the first receipt of gold brought by express over [illegible] in New York. Mr. Gregory carried about $4000 in gold across the isthmus, on his back.

The world will not be profoundly sorry, whatever be the agency that shall put a close to the fright ful little drama, carried on with the intellectual elevation of a farce, and in the spirit of the veriest blood and thunder, which such petty heroes as Diego and Valdibilling in Cuba. The Spaniards are in a charming temper for hot work, it want, the rebel Gen. Marmol [illegible] and without sanguinary hunt on his [illegible] trail.

The blood of the mutilated body of Miss Milnade is still warm, that of Valdemoro before his mother, wife, and sister, that of Ramon Martinez and his son [illegible], the one aged and crippled, and the other a mere stripling; that of Adolpho Rodriguez and Florence Villanova, both [illegible] young men, without any other crime than having preserved pure in their hearts the sacred fire of liberty; that of Bernardo Camachio torn from the arms of his wife after scarcely [illegible] of marriage; the body of Bartolome Tamayo, guilty of having said that loved their country; those of [illegible] Arrivola, Luis Mestres, Francisco Agueso, Luis Guerra, Diego Batista, [illegible] Vian, a Frenchman, eighty years of age, murdered in his own house, where he lay covered with leprosy; those of Louis Reyes, and a great many others, whose names [illegible] bodies were abandoned on the open field, to the mercy of beasts of prey. Above all these, are the bloody proofs of the [illegible] ferocity of the never highly [illegible] humanity of the gentlemanly and chivalrous Count of Valmaseda."

The New York Sun says that one of the vessels for the Cuban service, who left New York on board the Grapeshot has foundered [illegible] that a vessel is detained at Beaufort, N. C., where she put in after several unsuccessful attempts to land her passengers on the Cuban coast, and after being nearly wrecked in a recent storm. The returned vessel says that fifty men embarked at New York for Cuba, and that many of them are now wandering about Beaufort in a destitute condition.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup,

Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are [illegible] Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. [illegible] on according to directions. They are [illegible] clear the liver and put it to work; [illegible] tite becomes good; the food digests and makes good blood; the patient begins to grow in flesh, and [illegible] feels that a change for the better is [illegible] outgrows the disease and does well. [illegible] or two to one bottle of the Pulmonic Syrup, Dr. [illegible] Philadelphia) owns that unrivaled success [illegible] cessful of pulmonary consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup clears the mucous membrane of the lungs, relieves the cough by ripening the matter into [illegible] when [illegible] phlegm or matter is ripe and ready to be [illegible] cough, and the patient [illegible] easy. The [illegible] lungs to heal.

To do this, the Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver of the [illegible] that the Pulmonic Syrup and [illegible] make good blood.

Schenck's Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the duct of the gall bladder, so the bile starts freely and the liver relieves itself. The stools will show when the Pills are in proper condition. Do not be frightened at a few [illegible] (a deadly poison will [illegible] [illegible] unless with great care) that will unlock the gall bladder and start the secretions of bile. Take Schenck's Mandrake Pills.

Schenck's Seaweed Tonic is a tonic stimulant and diuretic, and the alkali in the blood. In this process is made to [illegible] to dissolve the food, which [illegible] digestion, and it is [illegible] into good blood without fermentation or sourness to the stomach.

This is the reason why physicians do not prescribe simple [illegible] to be taken with meals. Nothing [illegible] medicant to stop the cough, to [illegible] night sweats, settle fever, and by so doing [illegible] the whole digestive powers, [illegible] the [illegible] scrofulous, and eventually the [illegible] and [illegible].

Dr. Schenck, in his [illegible] counsel, does not [illegible] to stop a cough night sweats, chills, fever, [illegible] the cause, and then will all stop of their own accord. No one can be cured of Consumption [illegible] Complaint, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Diabetes, Chronic Throat Affections, or any disease of the [illegible] unless the liver and stomach are made healthy.

No person has consumption if [illegible] the lungs is sound [illegible] and the cavities [illegible] Neither can they have bronchial irritation, pleura adhesion, or the [illegible] symptoms of inflammation and [illegible] Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Fever and Ague, Rheumatism, and that too without [illegible] false advertising. WASHINGTON, May 21.

Proclamation in Regard to the Eight Hour Law

By the President of the United States of America—

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the act of Congress, approved June 25, 1868, constituted and established that eight hours a day's work for all laborers, workmen or mechanics employed by or on behalf of the government of the United States, and repealed all acts and parts of acts inconsistent therewith.

Now, therefore, I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States, do hereby direct that from and after this date no reduction shall be made in the wages paid by the government by the day to such laborers, workmen and mechanics, on account of such reduction of the hours of labor.

In testimony whereof, I have hereto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the City of Washington this nineteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-third.

U. S. GRANT.

By the President:

HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

An adjourned session of the National Executive Committee of the Union League of America will convene at the St. Nicholas, in New York, on the 26th. Considerable interest is attached to this meeting from the fact that certain movements are in progress, tending to display more striking than ever the peculiar efficiency of the machinery of the League.

The abstract of all the national banks, more than sixteen hundred in number, gives aggregate of resources and liabilities of $1,910,-000,000, including loans and discounts $859,-000,000, specie nearly $8,600,000, legal tender notes $80,000,000, three per cent. certificates $50,000,000. The capital stock is over $472,000,000.

E. D. Bassett, Minister to Hayti, received instructions from the Department of State today, and took leave of the President.

The rumors prevalent here of an alleged renunciance of the Haytien government to the appointment of a colored minister to that land, are authoritatively denied. On the contrary, the appointment is declared to be received by the Haytians as a high compliment to the colored race.

Commodore McCauley died in this city today. He had been in the naval service forty years.

The commissioners to examine the Central Pacific and the Union Pacific Railroads have completed their report and the commission has been dissolved. From what can be ascertained of the report, they estimate that at the date of their examination in February last, an expenditure of $2,800,000 would be required to bring the Central up to that class road and equip it for through business, with rolling stock, depots, machine shops, engine houses, &c. The commissioners also think an expenditure of $3,600,000 is required to improve its location. Messrs. Williamson and Clemens report that the road has been built upon the location approved by the Government, and is available to all the service that will at present be required. Accompanying the report is evidence showing that since the examination by the commissioners the Central Pacific Railroad Company has purchased rolling stock, machinery, iron, &c., to the amount of $4,500,000, the greater portion of which has already been placed upon the line in transitu to the road. The commissioners was being delivered from day to day.

Also on the Union Pacific road they report that at the time of their examination the sum of $6,700,000 was necessary to complete and equip the 1085 miles according to the first class standard—since which time the Company had been constantly at work completing the road and placing upon it the material necessary, fully to equip the same, according to the requirements of the Commission and the law.

The report states that the basis in which the road have been constructed has resulted in defects of location and construction which must be remedied, to bring the roads to a standard of efficiency required by law.

Commercial Convention.

MEMPHIS, May 21.

In the Commercial Convention today, the Committee on direct trade made an amended report meeting the objectionable clause discriminating in favor of Norfolk and endorsing the direct trade schemes inaugurated at other Southern ports. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance made a report, recommending the Government to establish a bureau of manufactures and mining, under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior.

The Committee on the Mississippi river forces made an elaborate report, showing the necessity of improvements and asking Government aid therefor, and also for the removal of the bar at the mouth of the river, &c. Adopted.

The Committee on Finance and banking made a report, urging Congress to amend the National banking laws so as to give the Southern and Western States fair and equitable proportion of the banking capital and circulation and to reduce the interest of the National debt and recommending State Legislatures to repeal all usury and other laws that tend to impair the validity of contracts. Adopted.

The Committee on Manufactures reported in favor of recommending the various Legislatures to free capital invested in manufactures from taxation.

The Committee on Agriculture reported in favor of appointing a Committee to correspond with the board of trade of Manchester, England, on the subject of cotton culture. Adopted.

The Committee on Railroads reported in favor of pushing forward the roads now being constructed; of levesing the Mississippi so as to make the levees a road-bed, and asking Congress to grant the right of way for a railroad from Norfolk to St. Louis, via Louisville, which having been amended by recommending the construction of a railroad from Ship Island to Jackson, Miss., and asking Congress to abolish the duty on railroad iron and by omitting the clause asking for the right of way from Norfolk to St. Louis, was adopted.

It was agreed to hold the next Convention at Louisville, October 12.

Suspected Murder

NEW YORK, May 21.

Some time since an old man named Robert Wilson died at Bergen City, N. J., under circumstances which have led to the exhuming of his body and placing the stomach in the hands of Prof. Doremus for analization of the contents. An alleged brother, named Isaac Wilson, is charged with getting the deceased intoxicated and influencing him to sign a deed conveying to Isaac the property valued at $25,000.

Sentence for Murder

BOSTON, May 21.

At the close of trial of Mrs. Nancy B. Madan, in Dedham for the murder of her son-in-law, the accused being allowed to speak, said—

Gentlemen of the Jury: I have nothing to say, only this. I am not guilty. I am willing to appear before God, but his blood will not be found upon my hands.

The Jury this morning rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree.

New York Items, &c.

NEW YORK, May 21.

The neutrality laws are to be strictly enforced and no expeditions supposed to have arms or recruits for Cuban insurgents, will be allowed to leave this port. The Mahoning, one of the heaviest steam cutters in the service, has been ordered to this port to assist in enforcing the laws.

Geo. B. Davis, on trial for perjury in connection with the case of Collector Bailey, was today found guilty and remanded for sentence.

United States Assistant Treasurer Van Dyck, gives notice that sales of gold will be made on Monday and Thursday of each week, and not more than two millions per week will be disposed of.

The Insurrection in Cuba.

HAVANA, May 21.

An authentic proclamation of Gen. Concepcion the 10th of February, which has hitherto been considered spurious, issued five weeks before Valmaseda's proclamation says, Every prisoner who has voluntarily joined the Spanish government or the ranks of the Republic will be considered as the friend of the Republic and treated accordingly. No neutrals will be recognized. All persons will be considered friends and enemies with the exception of foreigners who have been neutral since the beginning of the revolution. Those who have voluntarily joined the Spanish government or the ranks of the insurrection and executed any species of treason.

ALLEGED CURE FOR THE BITE OF A MAD DOG. The Kent (Md.) News says on the authority of a highly respectable and intelligent farmer, who has known it to be successfully tried a number of times, that the campana is a certain cure for the bite of a mad dog. Immediately after being bitten take one and a half ounces of the root of the plant—the green root is perhaps preferable, but the dried will answer and may be found at the drug stores—slice or bruise, put into a pint of fresh milk, boil down to half a pint, strain, and when cold, drink; fasting for at least six hours afterward. The next morning, fasting, repeat the dose, using two ounces of the root. On the third morning take another dose, prepared as the last, and this will be sufficient. It is recommended that after each dose nothing be eaten for at least six hours.

LOCAL AND MAINE ITEMS.

Fresh service to-morrow (Sunday) evening in the Central Church, Prentiss st., commencing at 7½ o'clock.

The National Peace Jubilee Grand Quickstep for sale by Geo. A. Bartlett.

Public Parlors open to-night. Ladies and their lords invited. See special notice.

Rev. Mark Trafton lectured last evening on "The Coming Woman." We did not hear him, but understand that his idea of the coming woman was that she should be a complete mistress of the art of housekeeping.

Among the visitors at the Methodist Conference, yesterday, we noticed Rev. Wesley G. Holway, formerly pastor of the Penobscot Street Church, and now Chaplain in the United States Navy. We learn that he has received orders to join the ship for a three years cruise with the South Atlantic squadron.

Lieut. de Burn, SUSAN DUNCAN. Our Shipbuilder yesterday morning stated that the Brig Susan Duncan of this city had gone ashore on Cape Cod and all hands were supposed to be lost. Subsequently he stated that the body of Capt. Turner had been washed ashore at Chatham, about four miles from Orleans, where the vessel went ashore. Nothing has been heard in regard to the crew, and it is supposed all have perished. The Susan Duncan was a fine brig of 250 tons O. M., and was valued at about $7,000. She was owned one half by Capt. Cornelius Turner, who commanded her, one-fourth by Messrs. Cobb & Thorndike, one-eighth by Leighton Brothers and one-eighth by Mr. Crosby, all of this city. Capt. Turner leaves a wife and two children here. Mrs. Turner is a daughter of Capt. Crosby. We were unable to learn the names of the crew.

THE CADETSHIP. The competitive examinations of candidates for the Cadetship appointment from the Fourth Congressional District was closed yesterday, the examination being conducted orally and in writing. The competition was so close between four of the candidates that the Committee were obliged to renew very great care in making the selection, which was arrived at, however, with entire unanimity. The examination generally was highly creditable to all the competitors. The result is given in the following:

BANGOR, May 21, 1869.

DEAR SIR,—We have to-day examined the nine young men who appeared before us, who were of the required age, spending a day and a half of close application; and of these who are well fitted for the place we have agreed upon Charles C. Burr, of Old town, as on the whole the best prepared, the most promising, and most likely to honor to the State and service to the nation as a Cadet at West Point, and as the first in order.

HENRY E. PRENTISS,
BAN. F. TEFFT,
JOSIAH CROSBY,
EUGENE F. SANGER,

METHODIST CONFERENCE. The session of the Conference was opened yesterday morning commencing at 9 o'clock. After an hour spent in prayer, the Bishop took the chair and proceeded to call the names of the members, whose character was examined and their collections reported.

Prof. Morrill, delegate from the Congregational Conference of Maine, was introduced and briefly addressed the body.

Mr. Trafton was introduced and also addressed the Conference, presenting pecuniary considerations.

Dr. Harris, Secretary of the Missionary Society, delivered a stirring address in behalf of that Society.

Rev. George Pratt was appointed agent of the church at Rockland to enable him to continue at that church the fourth year and complete the building of the church edifice being erected there.

The committee are busied with their reports and the business is progressing pleasantly and rapidly.

In the afternoon, Rev. J. B. Crawford, Principal of Buckspore Seminary, and Rev. G. Lull spent having died during the past year, the afternoon was devoted to the funeral services. Rev. G. Pratt preached an excellent sermon, and Rev. C. A. Plummer read an obituary of Mr. Strout, and Rev. C. W. Day read an obituary of Mr. Crawford. During the services a telegram was received announcing that another member of the Conference had just passed the river of death—Rev. D. Clark died in holy triumph.

In the evening the Freedmen's Aid Society held its anniversary. Rev. Mr. Gay, the General Agent, gave an address for an hour, which we earnest, eloquent and witty and well received.

The morning will be occupied by an hour of prayer from 8 till nine, and the regular business will continue till 12.

In the afternoon the Sabbath School Union will hold its anniversary at 3 o'clock.

Phillip Phillips will give his concert in the evening at 7½ o'clock, for the benefit of the sufferers by the late fire.

Wednesday Forenoon—Dr. H. G. H. Fuller of Waterville, was chosen President pro tem., and there was considerable interesting discussion upon reported cases.

—A few days since a young man named Charles Finch, a resident of Patten, employed on the drive of Spencer W. Young, on the Matinwamkeag, was instantly killed by being struck on the head by a log, while at work with other in rolling a landing. Mr. Finch was a fine young man, and much respected by all who knew him.

—The Portsmouth Chronicle says the prosecution of Capt. Knowlton who stabbed officer Mahoon in that city last week, has been dropped, a settlement having been entered into between the parties.

MAINE GIANTS. A Texas correspondent of the Lewiston Journal says that a man died recently in that town of almost giant proportions. He was six feet four inches high and weighed three hundred lbs. His name was John Keeno. He was buried before the remains of his father, whose name was John, who died at that place some forty years), and he also leaves a son John, who is six feet 6 inches in light. The burials of which old coffins were made were sawed by himself from the same log which furnished the boards for his father's coffin 27 years ago. The measurements of material furnish whole board for each side.

—The ship of the Bangely Lakes, Monday, who have her last, 10 years, say the Farmington Chronicle.

—Capt. Tucker of Wiscasset, and Capt. McKown, Esq., will build a boat on Mere Point, on the Harraseeket river, with steamboat Landing. The Belle is reported by stranger who visits the place to spend the summer months a fine model. Traditional Rock on the Shore, over looking the town from which we understand it will be named.

—The Farmington Chronicle points out following unfortunate incidents during the existing prevalence of Sabbath Schools in the village, in a Sunday's collector, who by mistake into way unperceived hall way up a man aisle, good society of evening to [illegible] seen to [illegible] family.

—A Portland paper says that despite the favorable reports of the Maine Central Railroad, it is thought that the real factory arrangements between the two roads can be concluded. This there is prudent information to rebuild on that road. The manufacturers on the Maine Central Road do not mean any unduly to have been deceived, in assisting the enterprise. Could private accommodations in Portland have been secured for a terminus, the new line would have been under construction before this time. We also are informed that a responsible citizen has been made to build the road, says the Lewiston Journal.

—There are certain fixed principles which are the foundation of National as of individual wealth. The violation of these principle, in either case leads to poverty. If a community or individual rolls on credit and then purchases the same, paying two profits and two transportations, poverty will eventually be the result.

Many cattle are driven from Maine to Massachusetts, slaughtered and packed, and sent back to be consumed—bleeding time with Maine beef, manufactured into boots and shoes for the Maine market, the consumer paying two transportations, and a profit to all who buy, or make or transport. Maine and the while work is performed abroad, our young men must go abroad to do it.—Lewiston Journal.

DEADLY DELIVERANCE. It will be recollected by many of our readers in this county, and also by several of his victims in Bangor, that about ten years ago there came to us under the guise of a dentist named [illegible], a smart looking fellow of some twenty odd years of age, by the name of Dolloven, pretending to be engaged in stocking secretary for a panorama of Aroostook. Of course on the Aroostook fever was then raging and on the increase, it was no wonder that he received all the attention and compliments to which his position as an "artist" entitled him. He stocked, returned to Bangor, painted his panorama, which was pronounced a daub, and while he sold for less than the cost of the raw material. He wooed and won a fair Pressque Isle damsel, about which time he suddenly resumed the use of his real name, which he claimed had been mute for a term of eight years. This wonderful development of the power of matrimony caused no little excitement in this usually quiet village of Presque Isle. Those who had been his warmest friends, and lavished time and money (help carry forward his landscape enterprise, now turned upon him the cold shoulder, and after trying in vain to satisfy the community that they had not been humbugged, he packed his kit and left. We next heard of him in New York, after which he returned to Victoria county, N. B., and built a "cob-house" saw-mill at the mouth of a rapid stream emptying into the Tobique river. Manufacturing lumber did not seem to be his forte, and he abandoned the enterprise. Since that time but little has been heard of his exploits.

The above brief sketch of what he did and was, has been suggested by hearing recently from a gentleman formerly of Woodstock, but who has been travelling lately in the Western States, that he met Dolevan in the copper mines of Lake Superior. He was deaf as a post and dumb as a sheep before its shearer, opening not his mouth. He claimed to be a government detective to protect the revenue from whiskey making in the mines.

One of his unfortunate feats he had inserted the first wife after she had borne him two children, whom she is now obliged to labor hard to support. He was then living with a woman who he claimed as his wife, but whom he has since deserted on the like plea of former one. How many more he may have scattered over the country our informant was not able to ascertain. The incidents of his own life, if written, would form an interesting work, and prove that truth is often stranger than fiction.

A child has been found in Maryland for a State convention of colored men, to assemble in Baltimore on the 1st of June. The object is to organize for political purposes, and to bring out the full vote and cleanse the ballot-box of the pollution of the fifteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution. It is also proposed to organize a colored Republican State central committee to look after the politicest interests of the colored race in the State, the old committee not having united in the Republican party of the state.

THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF NEUTRALS. Old friend Sumner represents himself as coming in the Alabama claim matter, in addition to such step as may be taken for a settlement with England, to have the government urge a conference of the leading maritime powers to discuss the whole question connected with the rights and duties of neutral powers in a time of war, with a view to bringing such powers to some general agreement upon the various points now in dispute.

A Little Boy's Pocket.

Do you know what's in my pocket?
Such a lot of treasures in it!
Listen to me while I tell all it's
Such a lot of things it holds!
And all there is you're to hold.
Everyone day's in my pocket.
And when I withdraw, and how I do it!

First of all, here's in my pocket
A bean shell—I like it!
And here's the handle of a cup
That somebody has broke at to-day!
Then this bit of string, you see,
Nobody knows that have but—I
I keep it safe enough in my pocket.

And here's my ball, too, in my pocket,
And here's my pennies, one, two, four,
And that dandy harp I gave to me;
Remember day I dug a hole to
When I'm out walkin' with the maid;
I can't put that here to my pocket
But I can't tell when I reached it!

Here's some more sing'lumy pieces
Of top and toys, and here's my string.
And enough had an iron ring,
But though a hole it lost one day.
And I think that's always so—
A little's the worst man a pocket,
Date it pendent when you've not it.

Vicksburg in 1869.

A correspondent of the Traveller writes as follows of the appearance of Vicksburg:

"Vicksburg to-day is a quiet little town of some little importance, and is made lively by the frequent arrivals of steamboats from St. Louis or New Orleans. The buildings show the marks of the great siege and the numerous patch work covers the greater part of the aquatinres. The hundreds of caves in the sides of the hills are still open, and bring to mind the accounts we have read and heard related of those suffering there. Many, however, have caved in, and in some places, the whole side of the hill came down into the street at the same time. One of these caves, opened a few weeks ago, was found to contain the bones of a whole family who had been suffocated there during the siege. The cannon balls are very thick, but the rifle pits and earth forts still remain on the hill tops. The spot where Grant and Pemberton consulted upon the terms of surrender, which was then surrounded by trees and shaded by the branches of a large oak, is now in an open field, cultivated by a negro who fought there. The marble monument raised to mark the spot, was so hacked by relic seekers, that it has been removed and a top-inch Columbiad gun reared in its place upon which is engraved the words—

"THE SITE WHERE U. S. GRANT
ARRANGED THE TERMS OF SURRENDER WITH LT. GEN. PEMBERTON

The graves of the Northern soldiers, which were thickly strewn over the hillsides and along the ravines, have been opened and the bodies taken to the cemetery, just above the city on the bank of the river. The Confederate graves were ploughed over and obliterated, while the remains are exhumed by lead hunters and carried into the city and sold for fertilizing purposes.

"Have you got a lot of Yankee bones there, Sambo? well, pitch them in now; they are just as good as mine honey," greeted our ears as one of these bone-pickers deposited his load at the shop of the purchaser. Ah, don't deceive yourself they are not Yankee bones; among G-d, they sleep in peace; thought I as we passed, on down the street. The canal, which took so much time and labor to excavate, is now filled with sand and flood wood deposited by the overflowing Mississippi.

The Southern chivalry, either refusing to hire a nigger or unable to get them, are obliged to carry their own trunks, drive their own or borrowed horses, and turn to the right when they meet a colored citizen of African descent. The negroes are working into the trade and building some new stores; while the negroes are in droves and happy, having homes and schools of their own. A combination of the landowners, who with not half a foot of land to a negro, at present hinders the full exercise of their enterprising spirit but this cannot last long. The junk shops are full of old pieces of shell and tons of bullets, which will soon be shipped away and recast into stoves, roofing, or perhaps into plough shares and pruning hooks. The glorious old flag floats proudly from the staff over the national dead, and from the top of the barracks in the city, where the garrison of soldiers flow remain. The sentinel, smooth old blue step moves majestically on, carrying up and down the commerce of a mighty nation. No battle-ties from from its banks, no rebel flags fly from the bluffs, all speaks peace. That peace which flows like a river must soon come, and the nation become the home of the free, which the soldiers of the nation fought to make it. The Fourth of July was a fitting day for rebels against the government founded on that day, to surrender, and may the nation founded in '76 and preserved in '61 see many hundred years before another needs rai sl against it.

Four Hundred Miles Up Stairs.

"Reading about electricity, lightning and the telegraph, the other day," said Uncle Peter, reminded me of a curious story I once heard, when I was in England."

It seems there was a newspaper in the city of Glasgow, in Scotland, which employed a London correspondent. This correspondent considered his duty to gather the news every day, and send it to Glasgow every night by telegraph.

He had made an agreement with an operator at a certain office, by which he knows was sent to Glasgow at a prediction, by the year.

One night he arrived at the lower floor at the foot of the stairs leading up into the telegraph office. The door was locked, and he could not open it.

The telegraph office was away up at the top of the building, in the sixth story. The operator had a bed there, to which he retired promptly, at 3 o'clock; and it was now half-past two.

The operator, up stairs, yawned and looked at his watch. Jenkins won't come to-night, said he, I may as well go to bed."

And there was poor Jenkins all the time pounding away on the door at the foot of the long stairs, unable to get in.

"If it be there," he cried, looking up at the window of the little telegraph office that glowed with light. "Hello, Jones! Somebody has locked the outside door, and I can't get in."

What's the row? said a policeman, coming along.

"I'm locked out," said Jenkins.

"Here I've got a batch of the most important news for my paper,—a murder, three fires, and a riot—and the door is locked in my face, and I can't get in—What will I do?"

So the policeman began banging the door, but Jones, the operator, up in his office was as unconscious of the tumult as if had been in the moon. He was whistling to himself and yawning prodigiously. "Why don't you go to some hother office?" asked the policeman.

"No authority to use any other line," said the correspondent. "Ain't I've got it?" he added, and before the policeman could tell what it was, the excited Jenkins had dashed down street as if a mad dog was after him.

Jenkins rushed breathlessly into another telegraph office, six blocks off.

"I say," said he to the operator: "I'm in a hurry, not news to go off inside of half-an hour, and the stupid operator at my office has gone to sleep, and I can't in, and—and—"

"Well, that is a fix."

"Tell you what I want," said Jenkins; endeavoring to catch his breath. "I want you to telegraph down to Glasgow, and ask the operator there to telegraph up here to Jones, and tell him come down stairs and let me in."

The operator roared with laughter at this; but went at once to his instrument and began rattling away at a great rate.

This is the message he sent:

"Glasgow. Wake up Jones, Station K; tell him Jenkins at the foot of stairs can't get in."

Jones was looking at his watch again, and wondering that he had better put out the lights and go, to the little bed-room across the hall—way, when sloater I clatter went his instrument.

"There's Glasgow calling me," said Jones and hurried to his instrument and ticked off:

"What's wanting?"

Back came the answer:

"Jenkins down stairs—door fast—go let him in."

Off went Jones with a rush down stairs—threw open the door, and at last the anxious Jenkins got up and sent off his news.

So you see how a man sent a message through a solid door, and up four pair of stair,—four hundred miles around by way of Glasgow—and all in twenty minutes.

Wasn't that four hundred miles up stairs?

[Youth's Companion.

How Webster and Choate Raised the Wind.

The intimacy of Webster and Choate is well known. There can scarcely be a doubt that they loved each other. While the former was Secretary of State, the latter was in the Senate from Massachusetts. At some point during this period Choate is reported to have found himself short of money, and being away from home to a strait to know how to relieve himself. He called on his old friend the Secretary of State, with a confidential air, thought and both of his hands; threw long, black locks of his, in his habit was, in a wild manner, to confuse up some way of obtaining the necessary, when, as also struck him, he will go to Webster. He said to himself, and saying his pet he would his way boldly to Fourteenth street. The door was at home, and received. Him with immeasurable cordiality. "But what is the matter with you, Choate?" he asked of the latter had on that woe-begone expression of which everybody remembers. The pondered Choate took a chair, and began to run his fingers through his hair in a state of distraction as to how he should approach the subject of his visit. "Not exactly ill, Mr. Webster, but I am short of money, and I am sorry to say that I will have to ask you for some." Webster leaned back in his chair, and with eyes dilated, and the kindest possible air of humor in his face, looked at Choate. "Choate," I am just $500 short myself, for the present, but here's my purse. But look here, brother Choate, continued, Mr. Webster, "I'll tell you what we will do; we'll make a note, sir, say of sixty days, for $1,000 payable in Boston." This was all right, and in a moment, and by the time it was signed and indorsed, and by the time it was signed and indorsed, and by the time it was signed and indorsed
